

Grundrisse (On the Process of Labour and Spirit, or how to understand Life with Labour but I mean as Spirit of course)

By Karl Marx (Retamar edit II)

- I. Spirit
- II. Types of Labour, division of labour, types of forms of enterprises, companies perhaps (Jewish Question), forms of labouring processes, types of labouring consciousness, and even interdiscourse of labour, manifold sensuous forms (a note for phenomenology) which then is how the category of say empirical datum, is also phenomenology, or sensuous practical activity.
- III. Production branches, lists of types of labour, and even types of units of production, and clunks of labouring forms in distant areas.
- IV. Materialist forms of Spirit

II. Retamar

How to organize the data before you is just labour, but I mean lived conscious working forms – just believe that you are travelling to distant and far flung areas, and it is about that experience in fact Marx means. Not so much the Grundrisse of say factory-systems and all that organized action. He means the opposite, just be about the process of poorest people in different areas.

He also means Grundrisse is Spirit of this process.

III. Retamar on Issues of Health perhaps in Some Lives

For people who cannot live in far flung areas and work on praxis and determine then the city or a foreign city even. Marx means one should be always writing this way. He means this is the divine work plan one was looking for – how it works is German edits of the process – imagine the concrete character of writing Marx – it is to copy his writings again and again with Retamar and Gramsci and Trotsky and Lenin – it means to just live this symphony.

V. How someone cares for me in Communism

And so in fact as I write down my materialist writings – in Gramsci how in Southern Italian towns there is types of labour processes which are about menial work and domestic labour which then is also patriarchal forms of material labour for government offices and such landowning customs, it is also in fact about the category 'debt-labour' which means the problem of hiring, contracting and introducing some money payment in the business, and this then is labour also for agriculture mixed with it.

Marx would edit this to –

- I. Labour under debt
- II. Labour and forms of practical discourse
- III. Forms of labouring and forms of criminal debate
- IV. Easy spending.
